What Beers Qualify?

All beers entered in the Fredericksburg Craft Beer Festival must be brewed in Texas by an operating brewery. All entries must be beer brewed with traditional beer ingredients: hops, malt, water, and yeast. Additional ingredients are allowed, but must meet the following criteria:

- At least 51% of the fermentables must be derived from grain. Beverages made with malt substitutes, honey, fruit or fruit juices, or anything other than grain as the majority of fermentables are not eligible to participate.
- Competition beer entries must contain hops. Exceptions to this include gruit or other historical beer styles that traditionally use other herbs or spices (such as heather or yarrow).
- For the health and safety of our judges, all beer entries comply with all TTB regulations, including formula approval requirements (as stated in Title 27, Chapter 1, Part 25, Subpart F, §25.55 of the Code of Federal Regulations).

Entry Rules

Number of Beers you may Enter

We will cap the initial beer registration at 5 entries per brewery. After the initial registration deadline clears, if there is room to allow additional entries, we will contact all registered breweries.

Multiple Location Rules

If you operate multiple locations, you are still limited to 5 entries total for your company.

Beers per Category

You may register multiple beers per category, as long as each entry is a different beer (please don't enter the same beer more than once).
